

AN ANALYSIS OF THE NATIONAL SITUATION; CONVENTION CLOSED

Taft And Sherman Meet All The Requirements Of The Men Control- ing National Politics In The Nation At Large.

WISCONSIN'S PECULIAR POSITION IS TALKED OF Had Prominent Place In The Deliberations, But Lest Out On The Platform Desired-- Is Wisconsin A Doubtful State?--So Mentioned In Talk Of The Coming Campaign.

(By Staff Correspondent.)
Chicago, June 20.—It is all over. The republican national convention has come, seen and conquered.
Taft and Sherman are to be the standard-bearers.
The platform has been adopted and now all that remains is the formal announcement to the candidates of their success and the choosing of the campaign managers.
Correspondents opposed to Taft have alleged a lack of enthusiasm and predicted a hard campaign.
Indiana has again been placed in the doubtful states with Iowa and Wisconsin as well.
Voted statements made by the Wisconsin delegates on the floor of the convention have been taken to mean that Wisconsin might go for Bryan if he is nominated at Denver. Governor H. H. Lathrop, and Senator H. H. Lathrop, displayed much anger during the outburst of the gallery when H. H. Lathrop was nominating La Follette and in these two facts the political Wisconsin place the states as doubtful.
One Chicago newspaper writer even goes so far as to say that the platform which was presented by Congressman Cooper of Wisconsin and rejected will be taken to Denver and there made a part of the democratic platform.
The attitude of the ten Wisconsin men who voted for Governor Sherman of Nebraska, who had not been nominated is freely commented on today, now that the whole affair can be analyzed.
The threads of the great convention are all that remain. Taft and Sherman have been nominated. Roosevelt and his policies are endorsed and as one prominent man says, "Every one should be satisfied. Taft represents Roosevelt, the platform, the people and Sherman, the machine." However, that may be, the fact remains that there was considerable discussion among the delegates.
Wisconsin stands in a unique position.
It was represented at the convention by twenty-six delegates—twenty-five elected to support Robert M. La Follette and one for William H. Taft. In the committee rooms Wisconsin was heard in protest to certain measures.
WILL NOTIFY TAFT.
Chicago, Ill., June 19.—The following is the committee appointed to notify William H. Taft of his nomination: Abraham, M. L. K. Steele; Arkansas, Frank H. Keady; California, George C. Ross; Colorado, Thomas P. Walsh; Connecticut, Charles H. Clark; Delaware, Preston Lee; Florida, Joseph P. Lee; Georgia, J. B. Garrison; Idaho, James H. Brady; Illinois, Roy A. Wood; Indiana, Geo. Ade; Iowa, A. D. Clarke; Kansas, Frank H. Keady; Kentucky, A. R. Burdick; Louisiana, not selected; Maine, Edward P. Kellor; Maryland, Felix Agnew; Massachusetts, Sydney O. Dwyer; Michigan, George P. Cobb; Minnesota, C. M. Buck; Mississippi, L. B. Moseley; Missouri, Joseph D. Howe; Montana, Charles R. Leonard; Nebraska, W. A. George; Nevada, Oscar J. Smith; New Hampshire, Alfred E. Hitchcock; Arizona, R. E. Shaw; District of Columbia, H. H. Plath; Hawaii, George R. McClellan; New Mexico, W. H. H. Llewellyn; Philippine Islands, not selected; Porto Rico, F. B. Quintana. ures that did not conform to the ideas of their leader.
On the floor of the convention Wisconsin was heard in protest to the platform adopted by the resolutions committee with the exception of Cooper.
In the nominations La Follette's name was presented with a long nominating speech and seconded by one nearly as long.
Then came the demonstration—partially for La Follette, but more in an attempt to stampede the convention for Roosevelt.
Wisconsin has left its mark on the Uncle Sam—Good work! You have given us a sure winner.

New York state republican convention in 1895 and again in 1900.

After leaving the academy at Utica, young Sherman entered Hamilton college. During the latter part of his college life he took up the study of law. He was graduated in the class of 1878 with high honors.

Certain enthusiastic Wisconsin men who thought Henry Allen Cooper should be rewarded for the work he did in the platform committee, suggested he be the nominee for the United States Senate to succeed Isaac Stephenson.

It sounded all right and was enthusiastically received, but one great drawback happens to be in the way. No one knows whether Stephenson is going to become a candidate again or not.

If Stephenson decides he wants the place all the action of the delegates would be useless. If he does not, Cooper might have as fair a show as any.

It is certain he would run way ahead of expectations in the first district, his own, and would loom up well in the western part of the state.

However, Cooper and Cooper's name, for the senatorship do not disturb the national political affairs and little attention was paid to the talk at the Auditorium and Annex, where the "big game" gathered for the final deliberations.

Among the other things that have fallen to Congressman Sherman during his stay in congress is the chairmanship of the republican congressional committee. As chairman of this committee he became one of the best known men in the national capital.

Personally Congressman Sherman is most attractive, and has hosts of friends in both parties. He has a genial, good-natured smile that wins friends every day. To know him, his friends say, is to like him.

At his home in Utica Congressman Sherman is president of the Utica Trust and Deposit company, president of the New Hartford Canning company and still retains his law business. He has been sent to congress nine times.

Mr. Sherman is married and is the father of three grown sons.

GEORGE H. WILLIAMS
George H. Williams, sole surviving member of President Grant's cabinet, at the age of 85 years, was one of the men honored by a seat on the stage at the national convention.

Judge Williams is a remarkably well preserved man. There is no falter to his voice, and it is the claim of the friends of Oregon's grand old man that he is getting younger every day. He was born in New York in 1822, and became judge of the first town district in 1847, and a presidential elector at large from that state in 1852.

He later became chief justice of the Oregon country, and was chairman her of the reconstruction committee in 1895 and again in 1900.

As senator, he was the author of the "tenure of office act," which kept republicans all over the country from being turned out of office by President Johnson. He also was the author of the military reconstruction law, while ten states were in a condition of anarchy. Under the law, chaos was converted to order.

In 1871 Senator Williams was appointed one of the joint commissioners to frame a treaty for the settlement of the Alabama claims and other questions of dispute with Great Britain.

In December, 1871, Judge Williams was appointed attorney general of the United States. In the period of perplexity following the presidential election of 1876 Judge Williams contributed an article to the Washington Star which clearly outlined the policy afterward pursued, and which embodied all the essential features of the famous electrical commission bill, which finally was adopted.

He has served several times as mayor of Portland, and has declined many political honors in Oregon.

TAFT WELCOMES SHOWS OHIO'S SENTIMENT

Chilcann, O., June 20.—A hearty welcome home was given Secretary Taft when he reached here at 10:00 this morning. A half hour earlier the Chicago train brought in the candidate for Vice President, James S. Sherman and the sub-committee of the National Committee who are to confer with Taft on the plans for leadership for the campaign. He was escorted by a large number of Chilcannians bearing Taft banners. Taft and Sherman were driven to the residence of Charles P. Taft.

Frank H. Hitchcock this afternoon declined the chairmanship of the republican national committee.

LAST LETTER FROM MAN WHO WRITES ON NATIONAL POLITICS.

PRaises THE NOMINEES

Man from Kansas Tells What He Thinks Relative to Management and Possibilities of the Coming Campaign.

BY WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE
[Special service to Janesville Gazette.]
[Copyright, 1908, by George Matthew Adams.]

Chicago, June 20.—The President gave Taft to the people, the people gave the platform to the machine, and the machine got Sherman.

That is the history of four days' work in the national republican convention.

And everyone should be satisfied. The President and the people got what they desired, and congress which is the republican national organization got its heart's desire.

Senator Curtis coming home from congress to Kansas this summer proudly announced that he voted for the Aldrich-Vreeland bill because he said "it will do no harm."

He and all the senators and congressmen may now go home and make the same proud boast about the candidate for vice-president.

But it is the old story. A vice-president nominee is always a second thought and often second thoughts are good ones.

It must not be forgotten that Theodore Roosevelt was a vice-president, the second thought of Senator Platt, who desired Roosevelt shelved in New York politics.

In 1900 the conservatives had the ticket and the platform, and the people got the vice-president; in 1904 the people got the president, the machine got the platform and the conservatives got the vice-president.

This year the people won two out of three of the points in the game, and should be satisfied.

Also, there is more to Sherman than mere machine. He is the best man the machine has stood for in American politics for many years.

Which indicates that we are all jogging along together toward the millennium in fairly good machine order.

Of course, Cummins is several laps ahead of Sherman, and La Follette is a scout in advance of the army.

But the party in its platform this year nearly caught up with La Follette's program of four years ago and if the party keeps moving it will catch up with La Follette and Cummins in four years.

And those who move slowly with heavy equipment have the same right of opinion as those who move with light baggage.

If there is to be a party there must be mutual respect, among all who ally themselves with it.

If La Follette can stand Burrows, Burrows ought to worry along and put up with La Follette.

But if either gets impatient with the others, Mr. Bryan stands ready to gobble both.

In the meantime that same Mr. Bryan who was the ominous hush, in the republican convention, remains now the chief hope of the party's success.

His blunders must make the majorities in half a dozen states, and Bryan when it comes to piling up republican majorities must be judged only by his past.

So it remains at the end of this republican convention, as it was in the beginning, that the fear of Bryan is the beginning of wisdom.

WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE.

WILL SPEND SUMMER AT SAGAMORE HILL

President Will Lead a Quiet Life, for Him, This Summer at Oyster Bay.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, D. C., June 20.—From now until the hot weather of the summer is over the address of President Roosevelt will be Sagamore Hill. The president and his family have gone to Oyster Bay, whether they were preceded by a car load of office furniture and personal belongings, a number of domestic servants and the White House clerical force.

The president has taken pains to let it be known that he intends to have a quiet summer, that is as quiet as the duties of his office will permit. He will take no active part in the national campaign. He expects, of course, to confer with the party leaders from time to time, but no visitors will be received at Sagamore Hill unless they have been invited.

The executive offices at Oyster Bay will be run by Secretary Loeb and assistant Secretary Foster in much the same way as in former years. The executive force will be quartered at the Hotel Schiller.

ARE VERY BUSY AT OUTSIDE BUSINESS

Cement Industries of the City Have Rush Orders to Be Shipped Out at Once.

Business conditions, with the makers of the concrete posts, blocks and so forth, are quite favorable just now. All are doing a good amount of business and some are rushed. None, in fact, have any reason for complaining about hard times and they all seemed too busy to have time to do so.

At the Janesville Cement Shingle company they are working sixteen hours a day, shipping sand and making cement blocks. They are sending out from six to ten cars of sand a day. They have the contract for a church at Waterloo, Wis., and several carloads of material have already been sent there for it. They built the retaining wall on the house being put up for Mrs. Robinson on the corner of Carlington and Garfield streets. At present they have men working in Milwaukee laying the cement shingles there and are shipping them to Chicago as well as Milwaukee. The shingles are made in the winter in order that they may have time to harden, and in the summer they keep their men busy shipping out sand and making cement blocks. Besides the roofs they have put on several in the city, one of these being on the United Brethren church on Milton avenue.

W. J. Hill, who makes the Riverside cement blocks, is using them in putting up several houses on Riverside street. He has constructed two, is working on a third and intends to put up two more houses.

The Janesville Cement Post company were loading up a car of specially made posts for a New York firm. At present they have a small force working making special posts. They expect to start up soon with a full force, though the posts that they are selling now were made up last year. They have purchased new moulds for this year's work and a carload of steel for reinforcing.

The Granite Brick company made a shipment of brick to Milton Junction for a heavy barn for A. M. Hall there and a shipment for a business house for Ray Hagg at Waterloo.

The sand company have a contract for gravel to be used on the viaduct being built in Milwaukee which will take 2500 carloads of gravel. They are sending an average of two carloads a day to the Grinnell company in Chicago for use in making mortar.

SPANISH SWINDLE IS BUSTED BY POLICE

Gang That Tried to Work the Residents of Rock County Discovered in Madrid.

Word has been received by the State Department at Washington that the head of the old Spanish swindle company that has attempted to beguile good American money with more or less success on the grounds of a political refugee in prison and a beautiful daughter with a vast fortune to the victim who would advance the money to aid her in her distress has been captured. It will be recalled that several years ago several Rock county residents received letters from Madrid with the same story in them and these were turned over to the postal authorities and were part of the evidence that was secured which led to the capture of the head of the whole concern.

The people of the United States are warned against sending money to persons who promise to inform them of concealed money deposits, or of alleged deposits in bank, or of sums concealed in a secret receptacle in a trunk or chest. The money in question is alleged to belong to a person dying in some Spanish prison who is claimed to be a relative of the person to whom the letter is addressed.

The prisoner is generally started to leave a daughter, whose guardianship is to be intrusted to the alleged relative addressed.

MEAT MAY DROP AS SUPPLY INCREASES

Grass Fed Cattle Appears on the Market Causing Slump in the Former High Prices.

Janesville meat outlets will rejoice in the report that comes from the Chicago stock yards that beef ought to be cheaper to the consumer from this time on. Scarcely no longer exists. Some cattle closed the week 75 cents per cwt. lower than last Monday and most of them have lost half a dollar. Corn cuts little figure in the beef supply now and will not until the new crop is available for feeding purposes and grass beef is already abundant. Texas is dumping a beautiful supply into the market and the movement will expand rather than diminish. More cattle have been marketed in the West this week than a year ago and so rapid has the increase in supply been that some grades are a drug in the stock yards.

Future Market Prospects.
All but the few choice corn fed cattle are due to seek a still lower level next week simply because an abundance is on tap. Hogs will probably gain something. Unless a heavy run occurs Monday, and that is improbable, the 6c hog will remount its pedestal, probably to stay there for some time. Destrade hogs are as scarce as corn finished cattle, but there the analogy ceases. Good beef yet scarce, the problem of finishing a hog satisfactorily to the butcher without the use of corn. At present prices mutton and lamb look cheap and as demand is always urgent around the fourth of July a better market is expected in the sheep house next week.

Mt. Clemens, The Mineral Bath City is reached without change of cars only by the Grand Trunk Railway System. Time tables and a beautiful descriptive pamphlet will be mailed free on application to Gen. W. Van, A. P. G. & T. A., 335 Adams St., Chicago.

FINE SHOOTING BY TOPPERWEIN TODAY

Large Crowd Witnessed Free Exhibition at the Fair Grounds and Marvelled at Performers' Skill.

At the fair grounds this afternoon a large crowd gathered to witness the fancy pistol, rifle, and shotgun shooting by Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Topperwein of San Antonio, Texas. Mrs. Topperwein is not only a wonderful trick and fancy shot but is also a consistent performer at the trap and has made the scores wherever she has appeared. Her husband's work is of a phenomenal and brilliant character. Small targets of all descriptions when thrown into the air, almost unerringly brought down by him with the single ball rifle cartridges and he is well deserving of the title of "dean of all trick shots."

"SILVER GREYS" TO PLAY GOLF IN JULY
Tournaments With Both Westward Ho and Calumet Clubs Have Been Arranged—Local Plans.

Silver Grey golfer of the Westward Ho and Calumet clubs will be matched for a contest on the local links early in July. The original date set was June 19 but the Chicago players wanted the local men to come to their grounds first and the latter could not see it that way, inasmuch as they had based the challenge. There will be twelve men on each team and every member will have passed his fifteenth milestone. The challenge has also been accepted by the Calumet club of Chicago and the initial contest will start on the 19th and be played early in July. In each instance there will be return tournaments in Chicago. Regarding the purely local tournaments, Chairman J. P. Baker of the games committee said this morning: "The handicap matches for the Wilson Lane cup will be started in a very short time, and the automatic handicaps as registered on the bulletin board at the links will be used in this and all other handicap events of the season. Frank Pfeiffer is the present holder of the trophy, but it has also been won in past seasons by Al Schaller, and George Baumann. To gain permanent possession, the same person must win it three times. If our experience is similar to that of one of the Milwaukee clubs, our grandsons may be playing for it. The Fuller cup, for instance, has been contested for fifteen or twenty times in the Cream City and the three-time winner has not turned up.

The Victim of Drink

Needs Orlino Treatment. Drink first destroys ambition; breaks up ties of friendship; it kills and buries love and eventually destroys the family life.

Some of the best men in the world have been victims of drink and if there is not some member in your family that is afflicted with this disease, you are indeed fortunate.

Drink cunningly destroys the will power, and while the drunkard wants to do what you tell him, he wants a thousand times more the drink that he craves.

Drunkennes is no longer considered a crime; eminent scientists and physicians have agreed that it is a disease and must be treated as such.

The home treatment that has been used for a number of years, and is highly successful, in Orlino, it is sold under a positive guarantee that if it does not effect a cure your money will be refunded.

Orlino is in two forms. When desiring to give secretly, purchase Orlino No. 1, and if the patient will voluntarily take the treatment, Orlino No. 2 should be given. The guarantee is the same in either case. Orlino costs but $1 per box. Mailed in plain sealed wrapper on receipt of price. Write for free treatise on "Drunkennes," mailed in sealed envelope by The Orlino Co., Washington, D. C., and in this city by People's Drug Co. and King's Pharmacy.

WOULD CINCH CROP WITH FINAL RUSH

Tobacco Buyers Get Busy Picking up All the Strays in District.

An effort to cinch the last remnants of the 1907 crop is still being pushed by buyers representing some branch of the American Tobacco Co., not only in the country districts but in packers' hands as well, says the Madison Tobacco Reporter. In the aggregate they have been able to add considerable to their holdings during the week, the great bulk, of course, being transferred from warehouses to their account. The largest of these deals in the western of the low grade ends from the fully packings, being equivalent to about 2,000 cases. A fair sized packing at La Crosse and another at Decatur is said to have dropped into their hands. Prices from growers' hands are fully maintained at former quotations.

The prospects for old stock is looking up, though no large deals are reported. The planting of the new crop is now under full swing in all sections and is going into the fields under the best conditions. Cool weather and frequent rains are conducive to securing a good stand and an early rooting of the young plants.

The shipments out of storage reach 1766 cases and 22 carloads of bundle goods for this market to all points for the week. Seventy-four carloads were received from outlying points. A prominent official of the big tobacco trust is reported to have said recently that his concern had never pushed the scrap manufacturing business but were now preparing to get out after it hard. Viewed from the standpoint of the enormous purchases which the American and its subsidiary concerns have made of low grade cigar leaf the past few months, there might be a good deal of truth contained in this statement. The trust is certainly well fortified to start a campaign that would make their competitors go home. With a command of the Wisconsin leaf, together with the big crop of Pennsylvania, New York and Ohio tobacco, given them a stock to draw from that they never before controlled. The price, too, at which this stock was bought would be another strong element in their favor, for a like quantity was never purchased so cheaply. Just where the independent scrap manufacturers can draw their supplies of raw leaf from it comes to a lively trade war is difficult now to see, for the growing districts are well rich stripped of low grade stock and the price of cuttings could easily be put up to a prohibitive figure. If they so desire, the trust is in a position to make it quite uncomfortable for their competitors in the scrap business.

Salt in the Coffin.

To put salt in the coffin before it is lowered into the grave is the survival of an ancient custom which was once universal. The custom grew out of the idea that Satan hates salt because it is the symbol of incorruption and immortality.—New York American.

and timidity in government, the other for strength and purpose. Democracy would have the nation own the people, while republicanism would have the people own the nation.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT

A Boston firm recently offered a prize for the best definition of what constituted success. A Kansas woman was awarded the prize, and this was her answer:

"He has achieved success who has lived well, laughed often, and loved much; who has gained the respect of intelligent men and the love of little children; who has filled his niche, has accomplished his task; who has left the world better than he found it, whether by an improved poppy, a perfect poem, or rescued soul; who has never lacked appreciation of earth's beauty or failed to express it; who has always looked for the best in others and given the best he had; whose life was an inspiration; whose money a benediction."

A brief definition, yet very comprehensive. The first thought of success, which comes to the young man after he has reached the age of thought, is connected with the dollar, for success in common parlance, means ability to accumulate wealth. When an old man drops out at the end of the journey the measure of success attained is usually estimated by the size of his estate.

Men succeed in business in proportion to their ability to make money, and commercial ratings have to do with success and failure along this line. How much money is he worth, free from all encumbrances? is one of the leading questions, and financial ratings are largely based on the answer.

Aside from the teacher and preacher, success in professional life is measured by a monetary standard. This element enters so largely into the calculation, so far as the industry is concerned, that every demonstration is suffering today for preachers, because young men refuse to enter a field where the workmen are so poorly paid.

A ride through the country, these bright June days, when field and forest are so richly endowed by nature, is an object lesson to every observing mind, for the line of division between the successful and unsuccessful farmer, is so closely drawn that "he who runs may read."

The same soil, the same sunshine and rain, but how different the results. That home to the left has gone to seed. The old gray house has not been painted in twenty years while the outbuildings are dilapidated, and the farm machinery decays in the yard and mars the landscape.

Across the way a neat white dwelling with well-kept lawn is in the foreground, and the fields which stretch away beyond modern barns and stables look like a garden.

The men are neighbors engaged in the same occupation, possessed of equal opportunities, so far as natural advantages are concerned, and both typical farmers by name, but they are as unlike as the grocery with a codfish sign and a paper price list posted in the window, and the up-to-date market across the way.

One represents an intelligent effort of the soil and a makeshift, the other a businessman, and a neighbor who has no license to be in trade. Success and failure easy to understand.

When the great German eye and ear specialist, Dr. Jensen, visited Chicago, a few weeks ago, the city was honored with a guest who enjoys a world-wide reputation.

But Dr. Jensen possesses more than fame, for he has a heart which beats in sympathy with suffering humanity, and this humane side of his life stood out prominently when he went into the slums of the great city and operated successfully on two children, deaf from birth, after refusing professional services for fabulous fees.

Physical development is important and should never be neglected, because it furnishes equipment for the struggle of life where strength and endurance are of vital importance.

Development of the mind is of equal significance, for a well stored mind and well developed body are a strong combination, and equal to many emergencies where success hangs in the balance.

But the heart, the fountain of life, and the reservoir of all that is best in it, no man can afford to neglect, for it brings success out of failure, and casts a ray of hope along the pathway of many a discouraged traveler.

The choicest eulogy pronounced upon any life is expressed in the simple statement, "His heart was in the right place." It is a tribute which endures when money and fame are forgotten, a heritage which spells success, when failure is written across the page.

The republican party has just placed in nomination for the highest office within the gift of the people a man who combines with physical and mental strength, a heart as clean and wholesome as the mountain brook.

William H. Taft is noted for endurance, a gift of strength who laughs at work when associates drop out and abandon the field for rest. The days are never long enough for him.

Luke E. Wright

Copyright
Clintondale Wash.

Washington, June 20.—Secretary Taft Friday presented to the president his resignation to take effect June 30, and it was announced at the White House that Luke E. Wright of Tennessee will be appointed secretary of war to succeed Mr. Taft. In making this appointment the president was influenced somewhat by the desire to recognize in an emphatic way that there is no longer any dividing line between the north and the south, and that all good Americans are in thought and deed one, and the president was influenced still more by the fact that Gov. Wright's personal attributes and experience preeminently fit him for this particular position.

Statement from White House.
The statement given out at the White House concerning Mr. Wright's appointment says:
"As Philippine commissioner, and later as vice-governor and governor, he won the affection and regard of the army to a high degree, and many of the most distinguished of the men who served in the army at the time he was in the Philippines have urged his appointment because they felt in a peculiar way that he was their champion and in a peculiar way understood them and their needs. This is especially true as regards the men who were union veterans of the civil war, for those grew to feel that he was always specially interested in their welfare."

"Moreover his great administrative and local ability both peculiarly fit him to deal with the problems in the Philippines, Panama and Cuba; for the work of the war department is now such that only a man with special fitness and unusual training is able to do justice to it. Of all the men at Yale to the 'quick-footed fighting elephant of our modern politics,' ready to step into the presidency if his party can carry the country, we gather incidents which speak of his courage, his strength, his self-sacrifice, his endurance, his justice, his patience, his humor, his wholesomeness, his firmness, his intense humanness."

"He affords us a convincing example that a man may smile and smile and still be strong as a giant and firm as a rock. He shows us how true was that word of the late Senator Hoar 'that the best boy has something manly about him, and the best man has much of the boy in him.' Taft is a man many of whose ways are those of a boy, a big, husky, rollicking boy, ever ready for a laugh or a joke or a prank, yet never overstepping the bounds of dignity, mixing jest and laughter with work, always bright and sunny, yet always a marvel of industry and achievement."

"At college we see him declining to accept a class post of honor because some one had questioned the regularity of his election, only to be unanimously chosen to the same place immediately afterward."

"At Cincinnati we see him giving a sound and well-deserved thrashing to the editor of a scurrilous sheet who had slandered his father."

"As Judge on the federal bench we see him declining an offer to go to New York as member of a law firm, with a guaranty of $50,000 a year, saying 'there are bigger things in this world than money.'"

"In the Philippines we see him taking advantage of every possible means of winning the affection and confidence of his wards, even going so far as to have a native prepare for him a diagram of the native religion, or Spanish quadrille, that he might study its movements and be able to lead the wives of the presidents through its mazes in a manner creditable to the governor of the islands and builder of a new nation. In forty days attending no fewer than a score of state balls, and literally dancing and smiling his way into the hearts of the people."

"We see him, at the end of a long, hard ride in the hot sun upon the back of a mule, keeping his own dinner waiting an hour while he goes in person to make sure that the weary beast of burden had his supper. We see him at his summer home in Quebec, at midnight, clad in the robes of repose, walking barefoot through the dewy grass with a mosquito-bitten and sleepless babe on either arm that tired womenfolk might sleep. This giant is as gentle as he is strong."

"This is the man who will be the next president, the man of heart and of destiny, the highest type of success."

In the country, the president feels that Luke Wright is the man best equipped to take up the work of the department which for the last seven years has been under the control, first of Root and then of Taft.

Wright's Excellent Record.

"As a young man he was a captain in the confederate army. He is one of the leading lawyers, not only of his state, but of the entire south. He has also been foremost in advocating and insisting upon fair treatment for the colored people. His first definitely established his reputation in the terrible days of the yellow fever epidemic at Memphis, when he practically made himself mayor of the town and took charge of all the relief measures, showing what may finally be called heroic devotion to duty and indifference to his own life, together with the masterful qualities of a successful administrator in a great crisis. He was himself stricken down by the plague he was fighting, but lived to see it stamped out and himself to take part in introducing into Memphis the hygienic measures which have since made it one of the model health cities of the world."

"He was appointed by President McKinley as one of the Philippine commission, and enjoyed President McKinley's heartiest confidence, being selected as one of the southerners who were in sympathy with his administration. By President Roosevelt he was promoted first to be vice-governor and then governor of the Philippines, and was afterward made first ambassador to Japan. In all positions he served with signal ability and has been in hearty and outspoken agreement with the administration in all its main policies."

WILL ORGANIZE TAFT CLUB IN THE CITY NOW

MOVEMENT STARTED AT AN INFORMAL MEETING.

ENTHUSIASM DEVELOPED

Papers for Signatures Will Be Placed in Convenient Places for Signature on Monday.

Janesville is to have a Taft-Sherman political club. This was the opinion of several politicians that gathered last evening to discuss the situation. It was decided at that time to place in convenient places of business, banks, etc., signs to be signed by future members calling for a mass meeting to formally organize the club.

While Wisconsin had a candidate in the field for nomination for the presidency there is no reason that the voters of the state cannot be as magnanimous as was the national convention in making Taft's nomination unanimous.

It is fitting that Janesville should be one of the first cities in the state to organize a Taft club, as Janesville was one of the three cities that had the pleasure of hearing a few words from Secretary Taft a year ago when he went through Janesville to talk at Madison. Already some half hundred voters have signified their intention of becoming members of the new club and on Monday next lists will be placed in convenient places for them to sign.

The talk last evening was that after the lists had been liberally signed a mass meeting would be called to perfect a permanent organization along somewhat the first week in July. Then steps can be taken for securing a visit for some of the speakers of note during the coming campaign which promises to be a very warm one if conditions can be judged. There are many men in Janesville who know Mr. Taft personally, and this will give added interest to the proposed organization. Wisconsin must not be classed as a doubtful republican majority of a hundred thousand.

JUNIORS' CAMP WILL BEGIN AUGUST 18TH

Plans Are Under Way for Most Successful Y. M. C. A. Boys Camp Yet Held.

On August 18th the Junior members of the local Y. M. C. A. will leave for Delavan lake for their annual ten days' camping trip. Plans are already under way for the camp, which promises to be one of the largest, best and most interesting one ever held by the local association. The board of directors meets next Tuesday to choose a new physical director and he will be here by that time to take charge of the trip.

Delis in life-saving and resuscitating of drowned persons, swimming classes, in which every kind of stroke will be taught, nature studies, and a field day are among the interesting things to be on the program for the ten days.

The Juniors, who will go on this camp, are the boys from ten to fourteen years of age. If there are enough of the older members in the Senior class who desire to have a camp another camp will be gotten up for them at a different time. Last year forty-five Juniors were at the camp.

LIMIT IS SET ON BASS FISHING BY STATE LAW

Be careful how many bass you catch these days.

The state game warden has called attention to the limit of the number of bass that may be taken by one fisherman and also to the minimum size of the fish that may be taken. The law on the subject is a new one and one that is not generally understood.

The limit in regard to the number of black bass, large or small mouthed, Oswego bass or yellow bass, is fifteen. That is, the section provides that no person may have in his possession at any one time more than fifteen fish. None can be shorter than ten inches.

It is said the section of the game laws relating to this matter will be strictly enforced.

The bachelor is attractive to old and young because the very fact that he does not owe legal allegiance to any woman surrounds him with a halo of fascination, an atmosphere of possible romance. ### Chapter Twenty-one

THE storm had passed. The day broke calm and radiant over the castle of Pruslok. Sunshine played caressingly on the lake and on the hills.

Markart had breakfasted and paid a visit to his horse. He wanted to be off by 9 o'clock and waited only for the prince's letter. He was returning from the stables, sniffing the morning air with a most vivid enjoyment of the change of weather, when he saw Sophy coming along the road. She had been for a walk. Her eyes and cheeks glowed with exhilaration. She wore her sheepskin tunic, her sheepskin cap with its red cord and her black blue skirt over high boots. She walked as though on the clouds of heaven, a wonderful lightness in her tread. The red star gleamed on the scalation of her spelt. The glad sound of the trumpet rang in her heart.

Her cordial greeting to Markart was, "I have a letter for you, which he responded to with his ignorance at all. He was uncertain how much she knew of the real situation. But if his tongue was emboldened his eyes spoke freely. He could not keep them from her face. To him she seemed a queen of life and joy that glorious morning.

"You've recovered from your fright?" she asked. "Poor M. Zerkovitch is still sleeping his off, I suppose! Oh, the story's all over the castle!"

"I'll be all over the country soon," said Markart, with a useful smile.

"Well, after all, M. Zerkovitch is a journalist, and journalists don't spare even themselves, you know. And you're not a reticent person, are you? Don't you remember all the information you gave me once?"

"Ah, on the terrace of the Hotel de Paris! Much has happened since then, baroness."

"Much always happens if you keep your eyes open," said Sophy.

"If you keep your eyes open nothing happens for me but looking at them."

She laughed merrily. A compliment never displeased Sophy, and she could bear it very downheartedly.

"But if I were to shut my eyes, what would you do then?"

He looked doubtfully at her mocking face. She meant a little more than the idle words naturally carried.

"I don't think you'll give me the chance of considering, baroness." He indicated her costume with a gesture of his hand. "You've entered the service, I see."

"Yes, Captain Markart, the king's service. We are brethren. You serve him too?"

"I have that honor." Markart flushed under her laughing scrutiny.

"We fight shoulder to shoulder, then. Well, not quite. I'm a gunner, you see."

"Minus your guns at present?"

"Not for long!" She turned round and swept her arms out toward the lake and the hills. "It's a day to think of nothing—to go riding, riding, riding!" Her laugh rang out in merry ringing.

"What prevents you?"

"My military duties perhaps, captain," she answered. "You're lucky. You have a long ride. Don't spoil it by thinking!"

"I think? Oh, no, baroness! I only obey my orders."

"And they never make you think?"

Her glance was quick at him for an instant.

"There's danger in thinking too much, even for ladies," he told her.

She looked at him more gravely, for his eyes were on her now, with a kind, perhaps a remorseful, look.

"You mean that for me?" she asked.

"But if I, too, only obey my orders?"

"With all my heart I hope they may lead you into no danger," he said.

"There's only one danger in all the world—losing what you love."

"Not sometimes gaining it," he asked quickly.

"But, the only danger would be of losing it again."

"There's life, too," he remarked, with a shrug.

"We're soldiers!" she cried in merry reproach.

"That doesn't prevent me from prizeing your life, baroness. In the interests of a world not too rich in what you contribute to it."

Sophy looked at him, a subtle merriment in her eyes. "I think, Captain Markart, that if you were my doctor you'd advise me to try a change of air! Pruslok is too excellent, is that it? But I found Shavna—well, far from relaxing, you know?"

"The Kravonian climate as a whole, baroness?"

"Oh, no, no; that's too much!" she interrupted. "Yes, she said: 'It's very kind of you—yes, I mean that—and it's probably I don't know—but probably against your orders. So I thank you. But I can face even the rigors of Kravonia.'"

She held out her hand. He bent and kissed it. "In fact, I hadn't the least right to say it," he confessed. "Not the least from any point of view. It's your fault, though, baroness."

"Since I'm partly to the crime I'll keep the secret," she promised, with a decidedly kindly glance. To Sophy admiration of herself always argued something good in a man. She had none of that ungainly scorn which often disfigures the smile of beauty.

She gave a little sigh, followed quickly by a smile.

"We've said all we possibly can to one another, you and I. More than we should perhaps! And now to duty!" She pointed to the door of the castle.

"The prince was coming down the wooden casework. He, too, wore the velvet sheepskins. In his hand he carried a sealed letter. Almost at the same moment a groom led Markart's horse from the stables. The prince joined them and, after a bow to Sophy, handed the letter to Markart.

"For his majesty. And you remember my message to General Stenovsky?"

"Accurately, etc."

"Good!" He gave Markart his hand. "Goodbye! A pleasant ride to you, captain—pleasant to last night's." His grave face broke into a smile.

"I'm not to have M. Zerkovitch's company this time, is it?"

"Why, no, captain? You see, Zerkovitch left the castle soon after 6 o'clock. Rather a short night, yes, but he was in a hurry."

Sophy burst into a laugh at the dismay on Markart's face. "We neither of us knew that, Captain Markart, did we?" she asked. "We thought he was sleeping off the fright you'd given him!"

"Your royal highness gives me leave!" stammered Markart, his eyes on his horse.

"Certainly, captain. But don't be vexed. There will be no invidious comparisons. Zerkovitch doesn't propose to report himself to General Stenovsky immediately on his arrival."

Good natured Markart joined in the laugh at his own expense. "I'm hardly awake yet. He must be made of iron, that Zerkovitch!"

"Quickly!" smiled the prince. As Markart mounted he added, "An revoir!"

Markart left the two standing side by side—the prince's serious face lit up with a rare smile. Sophy's radiant face lit up in merriment. His own face felt as if he had away. "I half wish I was in the leathercap," he grumbled, but Stenovsky's power held him—and the fear of Stenovsky.

He went back to a work in which his heart was longer was, for his heart had felt Sophy's spell.

"You can have had next to no sleep all night, monseigneur," said Sophy in reproach, mingled with commiseration.

"I don't need it. The sight of your face refreshes me. We must talk, Zerkovitch brought news."

In low, grave tones he told her the tidings and the steps which he and Zerkovitch had taken.

"I understand my father's reasons for keeping me in the dark. He meant it well, but he was blinded by this idea about my marriage. But I see, too, how it fitted in with Stenovsky's ideas. I think it's was between us now, and I'm ready."

Sophy was almost dazed. The king's life was not to be relied on for a week—for a day—no, not for an hour! But she listened attentively. Zerkovitch had gone back to Shavna on a fresh horse and at top speed. He would have more than two hours' lead of Markart. His first duty was to open communications with Lepage and arrange that the valet should send him all the information which came to his ears and any impressions which he was able to gather in the palace. Zerkovitch would forward the reports to Pruslok immediately so long as the prince remained at the castle. But the prince was persuaded that his father would not refuse to see him now that he knew the true state of the case. "My father is really attached to me," he said, "and if I see him I'm confident that I can persuade him of the inexpediency of my leaving the kingdom just now. A hint of my suspicions with regard to the countess and Stenovsky would do it, but I'm reluctant to risk giving him such a shock. I think I can persuade him without."

"But is it safe for you to trust yourself to Shavna in the palace and alone?"

"I must risk the palace alone, and I'm not much afraid. Stenovsky might go to war with me, but I don't think he'd favor assassination. And to Shavna I shan't go alone. Our gunners will go with us, Sophy. We have news of the guns being on the way. There will be nothing strange in my marching the gunners down to meet them. They're only half-trained even in drill, but they're brave fellows. We'll take up our quarters with them in Stenovsky's tower. I don't fear all Shavna if I hold Stenovsky's tower with 300 Volensians. Stenovsky may do his worst."

"Yes, I see," she answered thoughtfully. "I can't come with you to Stenovsky's tower, though."

"Only if there are signs of danger. Then you and Marie must come. If all is quiet you can stay in her house. We can meet often, as often as possible. For the rest we must wait."

She saw that they must wait. It was impossible to approach the king on the matter of Sophy. It cut dead at the heart of his ambition. It would be a shock as great as the discovery of Countess Ellenburg's ambitions. It could not be risked.

"But if under Stenovsky's influence the king does refuse to see you?" she asked. "Refuses to see you and repeat his orders?"

"The prince's face grew very grave, but his voice was firm.

"Not even the king—not even my father—can make me throw away the inheritance which is mine. The hand would be the king's, but the voice the voice of Stenovsky. I shouldn't obey. They'd have to come to Volens and take me."

Sophy's eyes kindled. "Yes, that's right!" she said. "And for today?"

"Nothing will happen today unless by chance the thing which we now know may happen any day, and of that we shouldn't hear till evening. And there's no drill even. I sent the men to their homes on forty-eight hours' far-long yesterday morning." His face relaxed in a smile. "I think today we can have a holiday, Sophy."

GENERAL FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S CLUBS IN BOSTON

Ten Thousand Delegates And Visitors Are Expected To Attend The Convention.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Boston, Mass., June 20.—A thousand more delegates to the annual biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs are already in Boston, and others are arriving on every train. Fully 10,000 delegates and visitors are expected to be here when the convention opens Monday.

The arrivals today found awaiting them a carefully prepared programme, which was planned by the club women of Massachusetts. The incoming trains were met by a band of young women, acting as guides, to direct the visitors to hotels and convention hall. At the latter place a bureau of local information was opened today.

The main auditorium will be Symphony hall, where morning and evening meetings will be held throughout the whole of next week. Five evening overflow meetings will be held in Chichester hall. At Symphony hall a branch bank has been opened for the convenience of the delegates and other features include a special postoffice and physicians and nurses in constant attendance in the rest room of the hall.

The entertainment programme arranged for the week will embrace a complimentary and down the harbor, a visit to the homes of Emerson, Hawthorne, the Alcotts, and historic places of Concord and Lexington, a luncheon at the home of Whittier at Amesbury, and trips to Salem and Plymouth.

Before the convention opens the club women are occupied with the question of the presidential election, which is likely to be contested. Mrs. Sarah Platt Decker, of Denver, whose strong hand on the helm of office has made so marked an impression throughout her reign, is about to step aside and the potential candidates for the chair are about as numerous as the different sections of the country.

HELEN GOULD FORTY YEARS OLD TODAY

Well Known Philanthropist Celebrates Anniversary at Her Home in New York.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

New York, June 20.—Helen Miller Gould, whose generous philanthropy and acts of charity have made her name a household word, was forty years old today. Miss Gould is the only unmarried child of the late Jay Gould. Dame Ruiter has had her engaged several times, once to Alva Potter, son of Bishop Potter. But Miss Gould's intimate friends declare that matrimony is the idea furthest from her thoughts.

Miss Gould is probably the richest unmarried woman in America. Her fortune is estimated all the way from $20,000,000 to $100,000,000. On her father's death she inherited about $15,000,000 in good railroad and other securities. In addition, he gave to her his residence at 575 Fifth avenue, and the beautiful abbey-like Lyndhurst, the mansion which stands between Irvington and Tarrytown. Its cost was more than $1,000,000. The railroad securities have enhanced in value, and it is not trenching upon romance to estimate that Miss Gould's annual income is above $1,000,000.

FILES SURRENDER OF ITS FRANCHISE

Manitowoc Firm Takes Advantage of the Public Utility Law by Notification.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Manitowoc, June 20.—Under provisions of the public utility law of the last legislature, the Manitowoc Water Works company has filed a surrender of its city franchise and will apply for an intermediate permit from the State Highway Commission, this permit being in effect a perpetual franchise. Under the permit the company is protected against competition, unless at order of the commission, but it yields to the commission for regulation of rates, service and business. The Water company was given a city franchise in 1887 and it was to expire in November, the present year, though the company contended that it was perpetual. There is pending before the State Commission a hearing for valuation of the property which the city has taken steps to acquire. This proceeding will not be affected by the action of the company in surrendering its franchise. C. L. Gray, of Whitewater, T. W. Gray of this city, and T. Maxey, of Oshkosh, are officers of the company.

Plan Pleas.
The Equitable Fraternal Union, a Wisconsin fraternal society, wants to come here for its annual picnic which has been a big feature of the organization since its establishment. The picnic is held in August and attracts from four thousand to five thousand people. The local lodge will meet next week to decide whether the city will entertain the gathering. President Thompson, of Neenah, was here yesterday to submit the proposal.

Want Permit to Build.
On condition that the city council will grant the company a long term permit to use one block of South 7th street the newly organized Manitowoc Boiler Works, capitalized at $200,000, will erect a large addition to its boiler plant. The company owns property on both sides of the street and the present plant occupies one addition and it is proposed to erect an addition to join this, with the street used for spur tracks to accommodate the plant.

Seeks Bonus of $200.
Ringling Bros' circus wants a bonus of $200 to come here July 25. The proposal will probably be neglected.

Drove Auto From Chicago: Rollin Lewis and Henry Carpenter drove up from Chicago yesterday afternoon in the new Ford, recently purchased by Mr. Carpenter. They report the roads as in fairly good condition.

NEWS FORECAST OF THE COMING WEEK

Commencements, June Brides and Political Events Will Continue to Hold Interest.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Washington, D. C., June 20.—With the republican ticket named there will be a temporary lull in the national political arena until the time approaches for the delegates to gather in Denver for the democratic nominating convention.

One of the interesting political events of the week will be the state primary in Tennessee next Saturday, the result of which will determine the gubernatorial contest between Governor Patterson and former Senator Carmack.

Local republicans will meet in state convention at Watertown to ratify the results of the recent primary and Georgia democrats will meet at Atlanta for the same purpose and also choose delegates to the Denver convention.

The three-cornered race for the governorship of North Carolina will be settled at the democratic state convention in Charlotte Wednesday. Vermont democrats will meet in convention at Burlington Friday to name a state ticket and select delegates to the Denver convention.

Americans will be much interested in the wedding of Miss Jean Reid, daughter of Whitelaw Reid, the American Ambassador to Great Britain, and Hon. John Hubert Ward, brother of the Earl of Dudley, which is scheduled to take place in the chapel royal of St. James Palace next Tuesday.

During the week commencement exercises will be held at Harvard, Yale and other big colleges with reunions of alumni and addresses by men of note.

The week will be filled with events of interest to all lovers of equine sports, including the two biggest horse races of the year in America. The crews of Yale and Harvard will have it out on the Thames at New London Thursday, and two days later the crews of half a dozen leading colleges will meet on the Hudson in the annual regatta of the Intercollegiate Rowing association.

Saturday the athletic team which will uphold the United States in the coming Olympic games in London will sail from New York on the steamship Philadelphia.

Leading conventions of the week will include the annual meeting of the national association of Credit Men at Denver, the Travelers' Protective association at Milwaukee, the United Commercial Travelers at Columbus, the American Library association at Minneapolis, the International association of Factory Inspectors at Toronto, and the biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's clubs in Boston.

To Play Burlington: The Red Sox left this morning for Burlington where they will play the Burlington team today and tomorrow. They are undaunted by their failures in the past games and expect to win both games. The battery are Smith and Hall, with Batters as extra pitcher. Two new players have been secured, Dabbins on first base and Miller as third baseman. Next Friday they play Evansville at Evansville.
